National Right to Life presents...

auctions for life

Auctions for Life is a new project utilizing internet auction technology to raise money in support of our lifesaving work. By sending your new and gently used items to National Right to Life for online auction sales, you can help us raise money that will strengthen and enhance our life-saving efforts.

GUIDELINES for Donating Items to Auctions for Life

- items should weigh less than 30 pounds and be small enough to send in the mail.
- items should have a resale value of at least $35.
- items must be safe, appropriate and eligible for sale on major auction sites and will be pre-screened for sale.
- all items become property of National Right to Life once they are donated.

For a detailed list of what we can and cannot accept, please visit www.talentedonline.com and go to the "Auctions for Life" page.

Auctions for Life Is Launched!

Featured below is the exemplary response to Auctions for Life's (AFL) first advertisement. It is exactly the type of reply AFL hopes to receive.

AFL is a fundraising project of National Right to Life, designed to enhance NRL's pro-life efforts. NRL has enlisted the expertise of Talented Online, a pro-life online auctioneer whose experience and common goal made it a great fit for NRL and the AFL project.

"eBay is about community. So is the right to life movement. It's a natural fit," says Talented Online CEO Patrick Hussey.

National Right to Life is excited about this community-based project as an alternate way for people to get involved in pro-life efforts. "Sometimes people can't give money," said Hussey, "but they can help in a different and very personal way—by donating through Auctions for Life."

The First Response to Auctions for Life

Hello,
 I saw your ad in the National Right to Life News and thought perhaps you might like an item I have. It's a Dmitri Young hand autographed baseball. I used to live in Cincinnati and when Mr. Young played for the Reds, he signed this baseball for our church raffle and I won it. (Now he plays for Detroit.)

Because the ball was signed when Mr. Young was in the National League, it's an NL ball, hand signed with his name and Reds number 25.

I don't know its value, but I did check eBay and there is a signed Detroit Tigers helmet and the bidding starts at $39.95 for that.

If you'd like to have it for auction, please let me know.

Thank you.
 Rosann O'Reilly
